

BRITISH-GREEK BREAK CERTAIN

England Recalls Minister, Following Execution of Five Ex-Officials

CABINET POWERLESS

Trials and Death Sentences Under Authority of Revolutionaryaries

By International News Service.

ATHENS, Nov. 29.—Diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Greece were broken off today when the British minister, P. O. Lendley, obtained his passport at the Greek foreign office and departed for home because of the execution of five former Greek ministers against the wishes of England.

It is reported Prince Andrew and other former ministers in the government under Constantine's regime will be placed on trial before the military tribunal created by the Greek revolutionary committee. Other executions are expected. The first secretary of the British legation and C. H. Beninick, British member of the financial control committee, are remaining here. The bodies of the six former officials shot to death yesterday by a firing squad have been turned over to their families. They were: Former Premier H. Gounaris, former Premier Protopapadakis, former Minister of Interior Stratos, former Foreign Minister Baltazis, former War Minister Theodoris, and General Hadjandenis, commander-in-chief of the Greek army in Asia Minor.

Took Fate Bravely.

All took their fate bravely. Hadjandenis went when the verdict was read degrading him, but he quickly recovered his composure.

When Baltazis learned his sentence was death by shooting he removed his monocle, drew a silk handkerchief from his pocket, and nervously polished the glass. Gounaris, one of the best known and influential of modern Greek statesmen, sat huddled up in his seat wearing his overcoat collar turned up. He remained passive throughout the proceedings.

All the prisoners were pale and haggard, for the sessions of the court had been long and arduous. They got practically no sleep on Monday night.

E. A. Caffery, first secretary of the American legation, attempted to intercede for the lives of the condemned men with members of the new cabinet headed by Premier Gounaris. Mr. Caffery was informed that the proceedings had been undertaken by the Greek revolutionary committee, which had created and invested the military court with power. The cabinet members said they were virtually powerless.

Calls Them Traitors.

On account of his high feeling created by the sensational executions, the president of the martial court issued a statement defending the death sentences.

"These traitors, traitors," said the statement, "knowingly attempted to strengthen the throne under Constantine in order to enjoy public office. They used terroristic methods to stifle opposition and they betrayed the people."

In view of the fact that Great Britain and America have filed protests against the execution, it is said that other nations will do likewise.

ROME, Nov. 29.—Protests against the execution of former Greek ministers at Athens were voiced in the senate today. Former foreign Minister Tittoni said many officials were horrified at the news from Athens.

Negotiating a proposal of marriage is the most difficult thing on earth. Ask George—no wonder!

George, in this case, is the much-to-be-pitied hero of the sparkling Booth Tarkington comedy "The Ghost Story" to be acted by Little Theater Players with two other plays Saturday in the high school auditorium under the sponsorship of the American Association of University Women. George, home from college for the holidays, finds Anna, the girl of his dreams, completely surrounded by his rivals and looked up with for every social. In desperation he attempts a proposal anyway on the eve of his departure, only to be frustrated maddeningly by unkind circumstances and cruel friends.

He uses every expedient conceivable to a lovesick young man to drive visitors from Anna's presence—all to no avail. And then he has a brilliant idea—but that's another story, a story which will be revealed on the stage Saturday with the usual Booth Tarkington wit and the typical Tarkington insight into the hearts of the girl of his dreams, completely surrounded by his rivals and looked up with for every social. In desperation he attempts a proposal anyway on the eve of his departure, only to be frustrated maddeningly by unkind circumstances and cruel friends.

PILGRIMS ONLY HUMAN, HE SAYS

Student Cites Romance of John Alden and Precilla Mullins as Example

If Precilla had lived in this boy-crazy age instead of in the dim distant years of America's infancy, the smile that bowed John Alden over would have been worth a million dollars in the movies. And John Alden himself might have given Wallace Field a run for his money.

So Wade Arnold, high school senior, set forth in his exposition, moving to quote his own philosophy, that our most worthy ancestors and patriarchal predecessors the pilgrims were afflicted with the ordinary fallacies of the human race. Arnold was one of the speakers at the general assembly yesterday morning devoted to Thanksgiving celebration.

Arnold explained the theory that the pilgrims were the original blue law advocates, prayed for whole week-ends and were generally super-burges in their sanctity. Human beings they were, with the frailties that under all human beings to one another, he contended. But every rule always has its proving exception and in this case Pilgrims was it.

"There was one of the pilgrims," said Arnold, "who was just about as angelic as they get on this earth. Her name was Precilla Mullins. Romantic history says that when Captain Miles Standish became hopelessly infatuated with Sister Precilla, his heart jumped so that it blew a huge hole in the left breast of his armor. The old captain, although he could stand up in and in no uncertain terms tell the Indians where to go, couldn't sum up the courage to ask Miss Mullins to go to the altar. He showed the poor judgment of the military men in chasing John Alden, the Wallace Field of the colony, to make the proposal for him. John did as he was told but Precilla put one over on him. Looking up into his face with a smile that would be worth a million dollars in the movies 200 years ago, she whispered, 'why don't you speak for yourself, John?' John's heart indicator registered an increase of about three hundred beats a minute and they went into an automatic clutch to illustrate their youthful affection. Captain Miles refused to send any present and snubbed the young couple on all occasions. He didn't forget his grievance, either, as is shown by the fact that he later married his son, Alexander, to Sarah, the daughter of John and Precilla Alden."

Arnold's talk was a facetious highlight in an otherwise serious program. Several students gave talks on phases of Thanksgiving day and its meaning, and at the close of the assembly a collection was taken to be turned over to the Y. W. C. A. for use fund for dinners for the worthy poor.

The new stage equipment was in use at the assembly yesterday for the first time.

SACRIFICES TO SING HERE

Kathleen Keesting, Child Wonder Singer Turns Down Invitation

Kathleen Keesting, child wonder singer is sacrificing an opportunity to be the guest of the famous Miss Emma Calve in St. Louis in order to be the guest of Tulsa Friday.

An invitation from Calve to be her guest Friday in St. Louis where the diva is to give a concert, came to Kathleen just before Kathleen's personal representative left Wichita for Tulsa Tuesday night. The little girl gracefully gave up the great honor that would come to her in being the guest of the world's greatest Carmen and declared that she would keep all her Tulsa appointments, including a reception Friday afternoon. Miss Calve also wrote that if Kathleen should find it impossible to come to St. Louis Friday the visit may be arranged for some other western city in which the French singer appears later in the season.

"It is well understood," the diva wrote, "that when my tour is ended near the end of April I will gladly take you and your mother with me to my home in France for the summer." It has been arranged that Miss Keesting study with Miss Calve at her castle in the south of France during the summers and in New York city winters.

Miss Keesting will reach here Thursday and will appear in concert Saturday evening at convention hall.

Three Die in Gun Fight

HARLAN, Ky., Nov. 29.—I. C. Pope, Harlan police chief, Lloyd Hall and his son Sidney Hall were killed in a three-combated gun fight here late yesterday. None of the participants lived long enough to describe the fight. Chief Pope had entered the Hall home to investigate reports that the men were engaged in illicit liquor traffic.

Let us be thankful

Let us be thankful:

- for the bounty of Providence.
- for friendship, that we may dwell in peace with our fellows.
- for sunshine, and rain and snow, that the earth may become fruitful.
- for our birthright, that we may know the true worth of freedom and democracy.
- for the sense of smell, that we may know the clean perfume of Autumn mornings.

And let us be thankful for our legs, that they can carry us among the hills and down in the valleys.

Let us give thanks for our health and strength, that we may attend our daily labors and reap the reward of our toil.

And let us never lose the sense of gratitude for the heritage which has come to us from the Pilgrim Fathers—the heritage of courage, resourcefulness, piety and enduring faith.

Let us use this heritage in our business, and in all the walks of life.

Store closed all day Thanksgiving Day.

For all of these many advantages, which we of the aftermath have the opportunity to enjoy, we feel truly thankful and join with all loyal Tulsans in a proper celebration of the day.

The pioneers of the Southwest also passed through many perils to prepare the way for us to help build here our "Wonder City."

On this day set aside by the Pilgrim Fathers to give thanks to Almighty God for a bountiful harvest and for His care and protection against the many dangers of their wilderness surroundings we may well pause in retrospect to review the manifold blessings a kind Providence has bestowed upon us.
